Black Rhino Game Lodge is a luxury safari retreat located in the malaria-free Pilanesberg National Park in South Africa's North West Province. Nestled at the foot of an ancient volcanic crater and tucked within a Tamboti forest, the lodge offers exclusive access to over 55,000 hectares of unspoiled wilderness. This private section of the park is rich in biodiversity and ideal for unforgettable Big Five sightings, with the added bonus of quieter, less-traveled game drive routes. Expert rangers lead two daily safaris, offering guests intimate encounters with a wide range of wildlife, including elephants, leopards, and the elusive black rhino.
